Record Highs and Lows for the Country Fair

By Jean Perry

It's quiet now on Pine Street in Rochester. The roaring of engines, the buzzing of chainsaws, and the loud and rowdy country music have been replaced by the sound of crickets, remaining only in the echoes of our minds. The fairgrounds are empty, except for maybe a few scattered skeletons of the fair's infrastructure, some tire tracks in the dirt, and a volunteer or two finishing the remainder of the cleanup after another Rochester Country Fair wrapped up Sunday night.

This year, a lot of new memories were made for area residents and families, a lot of smiles and laughs were had, especially on Thursday, August 13, which saw a record turnout in numbers, says Julie Koczera, co-chairman of the Country Fair Committee.

"The Thursday truck pull went incredibly well," said Koczera. "It was really extremely well-attended."

Aaron Norcross Jr. brought in a great crowd, Koczera said. "He did a phenomenal job under the big tent. We have actually invited him back for next year. We want to keep him."

Looking back over the past weekend, Koczera said the wrestling was one of the highlights, as it usually is, and next year the committee will try to add a cage match in addition to the traditional matches.

"We're already lining it up," said Koczera. The fair might be over, but there is no pause between fairs. Just as soon as Sunday night falls, the committee is already starting on next year's fair.

It wasn't sunny for the fair for the entire weekend though, figuratively speaking. We all know how sunny it really was Saturday and Sunday and how stinking hot it felt. Koczera said the heat on those two days kept a lot of the crowd at home, in the shade, in their swimming pools, in their air-conditioned homes, and at the beach.

"Saturday and Sunday were not so good," said Koczera. "So now we're in the process of asking, how bad did we do? It was equivalent to a rainy weekend," said Koczera about the heat.

So it was a bit of a tough weekend for the Rochester Country Fair folks. People did turn out for the woodsmen show Sunday afternoon, Koczera said, despite how hot it was beneath the sun sitting on the bleachers.

"You do the best you can, given any weather conditions," said Koczera, although it was even too hot for the reptiles to come to the fair, so the reptile show had to be canceled. "All things considered, it was still nice to see people show up."

Koczera said the Country Fair Committee will likely have to hold a couple more fundraising events to make up for the loss caused by the heat because the committee wants to add even more fun events for the kids next year. The fair might not have a carnival or a midway, as Koczera pointed out, but the committee focuses on how to make the fair more fun each year without making it more expensive for the fairgoers.

Despite the weather, the committee pulled off another great year for the Rochester Country Fair. The people on the committee, as well as the volunteers, said Koczera, are what make the fair what it is year after year. Some, Koczera mentioned, even take their vacations from work just so they can help out.

"Without them we'd never get off the ground," said Koczera, who has served on the Rochester Country Fair Committee since the very first country fair – 16 years ago. "Sometimes I have some tough years, but when you work with such a great committee – friends – we do it for each other and the smiles of all the kids and people that come here. That's why we come here."

Watch Out for Baby Turtles!

Any day now, up and down the South Coast, hundreds of teeny baby turtles of different species – no bigger than a quarter – will emerge after weeks and weeks beneath the sun-warmed soil and make an adorable dash for their lives to their respective safety habitats. This moment right after birth is the most vulnerable period for the turtles, with one in 100 hatchlings surviving into adulthood. The journey from nest to their nursery habitat is, says "Turtle Guy" Don Lewis, the most lethal challenge of a turtle's life.

"For scores of predators, hatchlings are tasty and crunchy and, like potato chips," said Lewis, "you can't eat just one."

And as for humans, Lewis points out that people are also a threat to the hatchlings. Not through intent or malice, but through ignorance and inattentiveness.

"We run them over in driveways and roadways as they try to reach safety," said Lewis. "Lawn mowers become deadly killing machines."

Some species of turtles in our region, like the eastern box turtle and the diamondback terrapin, are under threat for endangerment. However, with a little help from humans as the eggs begin to hatch, "Everyone can become a turtle hero," says Lewis.

Many communities are restoring turtle habitats, like the one that Jenney Lane residents have created at the cove in Marion. Some families are protecting the eggs throughout the spring and summer, watching out for predators. There are other small but important steps people can take right now that could help turn around the decline in turtle populations in the region.

First, before you mow the grass, check the vegetation for tiny hatchlings struggling to get across the lawn. Also, before you pull in or out of your driveway, look to be sure there aren't any in your path. If you can't transport the turtle to a safe area out of sight from predators, Lewis and his turtle partner and wife, Sue Wieber Nourse, can help if you find a baby turtle during this hatching season. They recommend you call the Turtle Hotline at 508-274-5108.

The turtle twosome say turtles are an important segment of the ecosystem. They are a signal system, living almost invisibly side-by-side with humans.

"By observing trends in turtle populations, we learn about the health of our own natural habitats," said Lewis. "As populations decline, we know there's something amiss; something we need to address for our own health and safety."

Lewis and Wieber Nourse refer to a first encounter with a gentle turtle in the wild as "a signature event" in many lives. A moment when a person is baptized, in a way, into an interest of the mysteries of nature.

"The coming days offer a chance to engender that passion within a new generation of naturalists and to enrich our neighborhoods by preserving these important critters for our children's grandchildren," said Lewis.

It isn't hard to be a turtle hero, Lewis says. "And it's one of the most rewarding gifts you can give your future self."

When I was a little girl, my mother taught me how to groom my nails. She was a big believer in teaching proper hygiene techniques at an early age and then vigorously monitoring the activity until achieved to perfection by her children. Every part of the body needed to be cared for in specific ways and that included keeping one's nails neat and tidy at all times.

Before I learned how to trim my nails myself, it was a weekly torture to endure my mother's treatments. She'd hoist my little arm underneath her large bicep, pinning it against her torso so escape was impossible. There was never any bloodletting, but the close croppings always left my fingers a bit sore at the quick. When it came to toenails, however, she was amazingly gentle by comparison.

She used the same wrestler's hold on legs as she did on arms but was careful not to make a wrong move. She wasn't risking an unintended or intentional kick to the jaw.

As I grew up, I practiced my nail technician skills on my mother's hands and feet, always employing tender touches to please her after a day of cleaning and cooking for her brood. The application of floral scented lotions on her work-weary paws and claws gave her comfort.

From the hours I spent tending to her feet, I could have been certified in all 50 states as a professional by the time I was 15. Instead, I was her in-home unpaid handmaiden, if you will, happily toting basins of warm water into the living room where she would soak her feet while watching her favorite TV program and smoking a Winston.

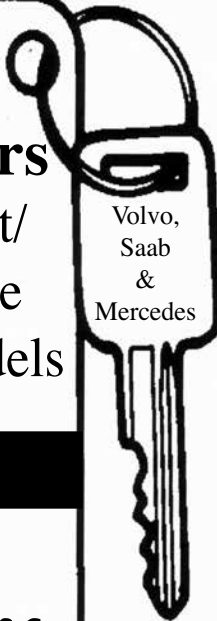

For many years, keeping my toenails neat and tidy was good enough for me. Then I had my first pedicure.

I'd like to say that I was a teenager or young adult when I first experienced a professional pedicure, but that wouldn't be the truth. Years ago, nail salons were foreign in our little patch. Big city hair salons may have offered this type of exotic service, but not our neighborhood hairdresser. Oh no, she cut hair, applied blue rinses to white hair, and gave the tightest permanent waves money could buy. But taking care of nails was done at home.

Today, our modern societies sport nail salons on every corner. Such evocative signage as "Paradise Nail Salon," "Supreme Nail Emporium," or "Hot Nails" dot the landscape and have become an industry unto itself. You can even go into your local big-box low-priced retailor and, before you buy toilet paper – 100 rolls for five dollars – you can get your nails lacquered. No, I was well into my adulthood before I could cost justify spending money on nails I could take care of myself. Call it Yankee thrift. But the reality is, I was as close to being a professional as one can get without graduating from beauty school.

Then something totally unexpected happened. The company for who I was working took a bunch of management types on a corporate retreat. Part of the program offered the females in our group day spa treatments. Cost was no object. We could select any of the numerous services from simple manicures to full body massages and, yes, pedicures.

It would be almost obscene for me to describe the pleasure I felt as I plunged by tired dogs into a fragrant pool of softly bubbling warm water, dressed in a plush terrycloth robe several sizes too large, surrounded by aroma therapy, dim lights, and non-verbal attendants. Oh, the rapture divine. In that hour, I became a pedicure addict. Cost be damned. I'd sell my costume jewelry at a yard sale to pay for this kind of legal euphoria. Thusly baptized in eucalyptus waters, I've never looked back.

In my mother's later years, whenever I would visit her at the nursing home, we would often laugh at the money I spent having my feet professionally cared for. In her mind, it was criminal – in mine, it was therapy.

I never really stopped taking care of my mother's

New Technology Brings Efficiency to Tri-Town Police

A recent sizeable grant has brought the latest in fingerprinting technology to the three Tri-Town Police Departments, bringing efficiency to a number of aspects of police business, say the three chiefs.

The towns each received a grant from the Massachusetts Sex Offender Registry Board to purchase the latest in digital fingerprinting technology that will make fingerprinting easier to perform, more efficient, less messy, and more reliable.

The advance fingerprint capture devices work entirely differently than the manual inking system. The five fingers of each hand are rolled across a glass plate and scanned and uploaded directly into the system. Under the old manual system, police departments used to send the ink fingerprinted cards thorough the mail to the Plymouth County Sheriff's Department and to the Mass State Police Department, and these cards were then forwarded to the Federal Bureau of Investigation for county, state, and federal fingerprint checks. The processing time has been slashed considerably and, furthermore, the scanner confirms the quality of the fingerprints before sending them off, something Rochester Police Chief Paul Magee says is an important feature.

"In the old days, we inked people's fingers," said Magee. Before, sometimes the inked prints would be sent off and later determined to be incomplete, partial, or smudged, rendering them unusable. "Once you'd fingerprint somebody and you get a bad print, you don't get another chance..."

Magee said, before, an officer could have a suspect – with additional warrants unknown to the local police department – booked for an arrest of a minor infraction, released under the name given to the police, and probably never found again. But with prints scanned, saved to the database, and sent off electronically to the State Police and Sheriff's Office, that will no longer happen.

The new technology has also helped out in various other departments, Magee said, including the gun permit department. Since the arrival of the new fingerprinting machine, the backlog of gun permit applications has diminished significantly, said Magee, and the processing of prints for vendors and certain license holders licensed by the Town is more efficient.

The machine was issued mainly for the use of the sex offender registry, with offenders having to re-register with their local police department on an annual basis, which includes photographing the offender and fingerprint matching.

"Printing standards are up to the current level where they should be," said Magee. "It's a great piece of equipment. It's something we could not afford otherwise, with budgets and what they are these days." Magee called receiving the machine "a big windfall."

Mattapoisett Police Chief Mary Lyons said gone are the old ink days in Mattapoisett as well.

"It's a lot cleaner," said Lyons. "Very clean. So that's a good thing. And it's just more efficient."

Now everything is uploaded from the system, said Lyons, so batches of fingerprints are cleaner, clearer, and easier to read.

"It's a win-win for everybody," Lyons said.

Marion Police Chief Lincoln Miller said Marion is also the recipient of the grant to purchase the new fingerprinting equipment.

"We did have an older machine, but it died out so we had to go back to the old ink way of doing things," presumably of elderly residents, and identified herself as a “Community Nurse and Hospice Care” worker. The suspicious woman was wearing a tee shirt from this company, but Community Nurse and Hospice Care reported that no one matching the person’s description worked at the company.

According to the Fairhaven Police Department, the suspect was asking elderly Fairhaven residents about which types of medication they are taking, and inquiring about the type of at-home care they received and if they lived alone.

On August 17, the Mattapoisett Police Department received a similar report of a woman who fits the description also knocking on elderly Mattapoisett residents’ doors. Mattapoisett Police Chief Mary Lyons said the report was from a third party, a daughter of an elderly Mattapoisett resident, who said the red-haired woman approached the resident near Church Street in Mattapoisett while out for a walk. Chief Lyons said there is an unconfirmed report of the woman having entered one house at one time.

The unidentified female is described as having reddish, strawberry-blonde hair and a piercing in her chin and was seen driving either a white van or a dark SUV.

Lyons urges residents to be vigilant and contact the police with any further information about the incidents or the suspicious woman.

“Be alert, and certainly do not discuss anything with anyone coming to your door unless you’re familiar with them,” said Lyons. She added that these types of elderly care providers do not operate door-to-door in this manner. “Be extra alert, and please call the police right away ... don’t wait ... so we can respond and try to catch the person in the neighborhood.”

current fiscal year.

The last time the Town raised the water and sewer rates was eight years ago back in 2007, when, at that time, the town committed to performing annual reassessments of the Town's water and sewer rates.

"This year, regrettably, we will be making a recommendation for a rate increase," said Marion Town Administrator Paul Dawson. He said it was important to note: "Remember that this is actually three years later than we had predicted [rates would go up]."

Most residents, Dawson noted, belong in the Tier I consumer group. The 2.5% increase, talking dollars and cents, translates into a $14 increase each billing cycle for an average residence of 2.5 people, based on average water consumption.

For water-only customers, the increase averages at $1.77 each billing cycle, and sewer-only customers would see an increase each cycle of about $12.22.

"We will reevaluate this every year," said Dawson.

If the selectmen vote to adopt the new rates, then come September, Tier I water consumers will see their base water charge – the standard payment made by all water consumers – rise by 2.5% annually, beginning this fiscal year 2016, and continue to increase by 2.5% each following year through 2018.

Tier II and III consumers will witness a 3% increase in the water rate, which will be adjusted further in the following years through 2018 by 15%.

All sewer customers will witness a 2.5% increase in their sewer rate as well.

As Dawson and the committee analyzed the numbers, the budget, and the projected shortfalls that would eventually amount to over $100,000 in sewer alone, they determined that the increase was necessary to keep both the water and sewer operations from falling too deeply into a deficit.

The rate increases help cover the costs of maintenance, future improvements, and chemicals for water treatment; the rate increases do not, however, account for what Dawson called "the elephant in the room," the unknown result of the Town's National Pollutant Discharge Elimination System (NPDES) permit that could result in an excess of $20 million in costs for the town.

"Obviously, we'll have to raise rates accordingly," said Dawson, once the Mass DEP issues a decision in the fall on whether or not it will allow the Town to explore alternative ways in which to comply with the strict environmental and pollution standards the DEP issued this year.

Water consultant for the Town, John Gregory, explained how the committee extrapolated the data and determined the rate increase percentage. The bottom line, he said, was the surplus and deficit number and its propensity to plunge deeper into the negative over the next three years.

After brainstorming, Gregory said the rate increases were the best way to even out the surplus and deficit number and come close to breaking even each subsequent year.

"This was the best means that we could come up with," said Gregory. The way that is least problematic for the townspeople, Gregory stated, but still meets the needs moving forward. "And the NPDES permit is still out there looming. We don't know how this is going to work into this."

Dawson emphasized that the Town has internally done its best in this situation, and he praised both the Water Rate Study Committee and the Department of Public Works.

FLEA ALLERGIES

My dog itches almost constantly in the summer and fall and loses hair over his back near his tail. A friend said it could be caused by fleas, but I rarely find more than one flea at a time. Any thoughts?

Your friend may be right. Many dogs and cats are allergic to flea saliva. All of the changes in your dog's skin can be caused by 1 flea bite a week. Cats with flea allergy dermatitis tend to get small scabs all over their body. Treatment involves strict flea control in your home as well as on your pet. Talk to your veterinarian about Advantage, Frontline and Seresto.

"It's a great thing that we've been able to hold this off for a few years," said Board of Selectmen Chairman Stephen Cushing. "We're at a point where we have to do it."

The board refrained from voting that evening in order to allow residents and interested parties to learn about the rate increases and voice their concerns and opinions during a special public meeting, which the selectmen scheduled for August 25 at 7:00 pm at the Marion Music Hall.

Also pertaining to the Water Department, Dawson said recent water quality samples showed high amounts of chloroform at several drinking water source sites, resulting in a thorough chlorination of each of several water tanks. On August 14, resampling was done and chloroform results were high again.

"Not e-coli," said Dawson. "Chloroform. This has never been a boil water situation."

The positive results triggered three required subsequent retests.

"And I'm happy to report, as of today, the results ... came back and everything appears to be clean," said Dawson.

Dawson said a detailed water quality report would soon be disclosed to the public in a formal press release.

The next scheduled regular meeting of the Marion Board of Selectmen will be September 8 at 7:00 pm at the Marion Police Department conference room.

Church's Preferred Plan Passes

Marion Zoning Board of Appeals

By Jean Perry

Their appeal of the original building permit for the 16 Cottage Street condominium plan was denied, but members of the First Congregational Church of Marion got what they asked for on August 13 – a new, better plan for the condo development next door that was more pleasing to the appellants.

Sippican Preservation, LLC, headed by Christian Loranger, was initially issued a building permit for the plan, which fell within the Town's Zoning Bylaws.

Members of the church appealed that plan, but finding no standing for the appeal, the Marion Zoning Board of Appeals denied the appeal. Meanwhile, church members and architect Bill Saltonstall had been working with Loranger on a plan more palatable to the church members; however, this plan then required a Special Permit, which the ZBA did grant on August 13.

"My perception is ... that the builder has, by right, a plan that he can do what he wants," said ZBA Chairman Eric Pierce. "He has worked with the neighbors.... If we are to protect the town's interest, we ought to listen to the neighbors."

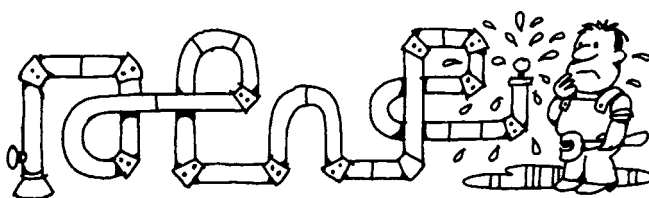

Deeming the matter within the purview of the ZBA and saying the new plan was still slightly lessening the non-conformity of the existing structure, Pierce gave the nod and welcomed a motion to approve.

"I agree that he's worked very well [with the neighbors]," said ZBA member Kate Mahoney.

There was some question a couple of weeks ago about whether ZBA member Betsy Dunn, who is also a church member, former church treasurer, and choir director, and new ZBA member Joanna Wheeler, church clerk, should have recused themselves from the appeal matter and publically stated their association with the church.

All members, including Dunn, voted in favor of the Special Permit.

Since the last meeting, Joanna Wheeler has resigned from the ZBA.

Also during the meeting, the ZBA approved the Special Permit request from Lisa and Ben Proctor of 69 East Avenue, who plan to raze and rebuild the rear deck of the existing single-family house and build a second addition to the home.

"It doesn't do anything but improve the neighborhood," said Pierce.

And seeing none of the abutters present to oppose the project, the vote to approve was unanimous.

The next meeting of the Marion Zoning Board of Appeals is scheduled for August 27 at 7:30 pm at the Marion Town House.

Parties Disagree Over Solar Escrow Amount

Marion Planning Board

By Jean Perry

The developer of a proposed solar farm on August 17 responded to Marion Planning Board Chairman Robert Lane's personal opinion that the decommissioning escrow amount should be $110,000 by calling the amount "somewhat unreasonable."

Applicant Clean Energy Collective and engineer Bob Rogers suggested a $40,000 escrow amount, while another engineering firm recommended $50,000. Engineer John Novak, the peer review engineer for the Planning Board, also suggested $50,000, with separate amounts that would increase every seven years upon review.

"I believe we've complied with the bylaw," said developer Greg Carey, referring to the $40,000 estimate and the independent engineer's estimate. "But for the purpose of trying to resolve the issue, we would be willing to work on a number that is somewhere in between $40,000 and $50,000."

Lane said he would not hear that number, and pointed specifically to one detail of the estimate – salvage of the materials in the case of abandonment.

"I'm not prepared to move from [$110,000] unless I get really strong reasons why," said Lane. "Salvage is all speculative. We have to look at the cost of seven years from now."

Lane conceded that the issue would not be resolved that evening.

"To go from fifty to one-hundred is somewhat unreasonable," said Carey.

Stormwater waiver issues were left unresolved as well, although Rogers explained that the drainage design has been modified in order to avoid certain Mass DEP regulations, to which Rogers was seeking a waiver.

The issue, which pertains to the grade of the site relative to seasonal high of groundwater, was resolved according to Rogers, who explained that the design has changed so that the east basin is at the existing grade of the land, and the system was reclassified as a "dry extended detention basin," which no longer applied to some aspects of the DEP regulations. For water recharge, Rogers added an over 200 square-foot rock-filled trench.

Novak disagreed with Rogers over the alterations, and Novak insisted upon the DEP's 2-foot above groundwater minimum as opposed to the 1-foot above groundwater waiver Rogers sought. Novak insisted Rogers' 1-foot waiver request for the system was over 1-foot, more like 1.1 or 1.2 feet, which would require a waiver for a different amount.

Rogers visually appeared perplexed as he went over the details again with the board and Novak, but the two engineers did not reach common ground.

"What I'm trying to do is protect the board," said Novak. "If they requested an incorrect variance then it's not good for anybody."

Lane asked the two engineers to meet at a later time to discuss the matter and resolve the disagreement before the next meeting.

Also during the discussion, Rogers provided the board with the reassurance it requested during its last meeting that would demonstrate that no houses could be built within 100 feet of the solar energy facility. Rogers presented the board with a signed letter from the property owners stating they would not later subdivide their remaining 23 acres of their land for the duration of the solar farm. He also presented an aerial photo of the site and a map detailing the locations of wetlands not viable for development to further prove that no houses could be built in the future inside the 100-foot setback.

slated for the Clemishaw Property off Tucker Lane might have satisfied the Marion Conservation Commission's concerns, and will now wait for final ConCom approval once the project clears the Planning Board.

During their July 19 meeting, the commission requested some minor specifications on the plan and a written vegetation management plan for the wetlands at the site. Since then, environmental consultant for the project Mark Arnold devised the management plan and also indicated on the plan the 15-foot "no touch" zone as well as the 30-foot "no build" zone as requested.

Taller trees within the area of wetlands will be lopped down to 10 feet in height, with the trunk and roots left intact. Since the last meeting, the project went before the Rochester Planning Board again, which resulted in the shrinking of the impact area, minimizing grading in that area. Also, a line of shrubs has been added on the Rochester side to aid in screening the Mary's Pond direction.

As for a vegetation management plan, mowing will occur every six weeks, careful to avoid rainy weather so mower wheels will not disturb the earth at the site. The field, overall, will be left as-is, with selective tree pruning around the perimeter to keep the length of the trees low enough to prevent shadowing on the solar arrays.

"We want to minimize effort to have to get in there and keep it clear," said Bob Rogers of G.A.F. Engineering.

The applicant requested a continuation until August 26, hoping to secure Marion Planning Board approval by that date.

In other matters, the commission was reluctant to issue a full Certificate of Compliance to Bill Langone of 35 Holly Road after a site visit revealed the existing timber walkway exceeded the scope of its original plan from decades ago with about 15 to 20 additional feet of walkway extending out over the water on a float. Conservation Commission Chairman Norman Hills said the float required a Chapter 91 license from the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection.

The next problem, Hills said, was improper and unapproved storage of the float during the offseason, as reflected on overhead satellite imagery photos. Also, there is a tennis court on the site that Hills suspects is located within the wetlands. The age of the tennis court is unknown, although the commission deduced that it must be around 30 years old.

The family that built the tennis court, said Hills, now wants to sell the property but cannot until the Certificate of Compliance is issued.

Hills argued that although there might have been beach erosion over time since initial approval of the timber walkway, the floating walkway would still require a Chapter 91 license.

After further discussion on the tennis court, commission member Stephen Gonsalves suggested the board refrain from "holding their (the property owners') feet to the fire" over the tennis court.

"It was so long ago," said Gonsalves. "Thirty years is a long time. Things have changed." It may have even been built before the Wetlands Protection Act took effect, added Gonsalves.

The commission did determine that any future improvements or repairs to the tennis court would require a filing with the ConCom.

"These gray and sticky areas really frustrate me. They've really done nothing wrong. Rules and regulations have changed since then," said Gonsalves. "But the float ... Let's give them a chance to let them rectify that." Gonsalves said he would hate to see the sale of the property fall through over a complete denial of the certificate.

The commission decided to issue a partial Certificate of Compliance for the timber walkway only, excluding the float, and plans to send the property owner a letter informing him that any future work done on the tennis court would require Conservation Commission

Also during the meeting, the commission issued a negative determination for the eradication of three isolated areas of phragmites on Planting Island. The commission plans to use this action to destroy phragmites as a data point to determine effective measures to combat phragmites in the future.

Lisa and Benjamin Procter of 69 East Avenue received a negative determination for the demolition of the rear portion of the existing single-family house and the addition of a second story, as well as a front entry porch all within 100 feet of a coastal bank.

Roger Tenglin of 88 Indian Cove Road received a negative determination for the razing of 900 feet of an existing 14,000-square-foot structure, but a positive determination was added since the wetlands lines were not confirmed.

The commission held off on issuing a Certificate of Compliance to Heidi Kostin of 167 Cross Neck Road until the vegetation in the restoration area reestablished itself, possibly next spring.

The Notice of Intent for the Town of Marion to reconstruct a 337-foot long, 4-foot high seawall at Sprague's Cove was continued until December 9.

The Request for Determination of Applicability for Chuong Pham of 22 Bass Creek Road was continued until September 9.

To the Editor:

Thank you to everyone who helped make Marion's Elizabeth Taber Library's 2015 Book Sale a success. Led by Nita Howland and Sue Schwager, who have tirelessly worked and promoted the event for many months (as well as many years), the Board of Trustees wanted to take this opportunity to thank all that helped this year. Remember, this is our library's biggest fundraiser and you all made it happen. Thank you to Nancy Rolli, Michelle Sampson, Charlene Sperry, Karilon

Grainger, Marthe Soden, Betty Broome, Carol Houdelette, Diana Markle, Zora Turnbull Lynch, Beth Marsden, Kathy Feeney, Nicole Davignon, Gary Sousa, Stephen Carnazza and John Rolli. I also wanted to thank the Town of Marion's Department of Public Works, who are always there to help transport our books back and forth from the book sale. Thank you all for making this a success. It is truly a town-wide initiative.

The Elizabeth Taber Library is funded in only two-thirds part by the Town of Marion, and the remaining one-third is through generous donations throughout the year and this book sale. Our goal for the library is for it to be much more than just a place to go check out books, but also a place to participate, face to face, in community activities in a way we can't do over the internet. We want to make our library the center, or heartbeat if you will, of our town. With an energetic and intelligent Elisabeth "Libby" O'Neill at the helm, this library is going places. You have all helped us to continue to get closer to that goal, and we look forward to more initiatives in the future to keep our library progressing toward an even brighter future.

To the Editor:

Oh What a Night!

You asked for it, so we brought it to you. Last Friday night, about 200 adults came back to Holmes Wharf for the first adult wharf dance. It seems like everyone had a great time, and asked for the dances to continue next year.

The Mattapoisett Track Club would like to thank everyone who helped make the dance a success. The Board of Selectmen allowed us the permit to hold the dance. Police Chief Mary Lyons came and spoke for us. Thanks to Nick's Pizza, Matt's Blackboard, The Inn at Shipyard Park and The Slip for offering to sell tickets for us. Tom Cooney was our great DJ who kept the wharf rocking all night. All the workers who helped set up and take down, we couldn't have done it without you. A big thanks to everyone who attended and to those of you who

Dear Editor:

The Village at Mattapoisett has requested that the Mattapoisett Planning Board change their special permit regarding trash collection, which is their responsibility under the agreement. When the present contract with the trash company gets sold to the next company, these units will be added to the total number in the new contract, thereby costing the town more. Next will come the rest of the restrictions for road maintenance and snow removal. They assure us that this is not even a consideration – Yet. [see: the controversial road acceptance of Seabreeze Lane about five years ago].

For voicing my opinion, I was metaphorically referred to as Mr. Bumble and told how “Some of us create the slippery slopes, embrace them, and help others to share the ride!” It just amuses me that the “progressive elitists” enjoy these rides at the expense of others. My family has been here in Mattapoisett since 1952 and have always paid our taxes and also the “household goods tax” levied on the summer residents. We didn’t use the services of the town but we paid our taxes and more. My kids weren’t educated here but I sure helped to educate all five of my accuser’s children.

My record for service to the local community and the Town of Mattapoisett stands on its own merits. I just

Tri-County Music Association

The Tri-County Music Association wishes to congratulate the 2015 recipients of the John R. Pandolfi Scholarship for musical studies. Since 1962, the Tri-County Music Association has been working hard to bring quality music to the community and to assist local youth in achieving dreams of doing the same. Each year, this association distributes $12,000 in scholarships to highly deserving and dedicated students. What makes these scholarships truly spectacular is that they go not only to aspiring university students, but also to high school students aspiring to pursue musical studies during their summer breaks.

This year we congratulate Katrina Arabie of Taunton (University of North Texas), Travis Bliss of Mattapoisett (New England Conservatory), Hannah Cormier of Mattapoisett (University of Massachusetts – Amherst), Maria D'Ambrosio of Plymouth (Boston Conservatory of Music), Ashley Perry of Taunton (Boston University), Michael Raposo of Somerset (Hartt School of Music), and Matthew Twaddle of Marion (University of Massachusetts – Amherst), who have received college scholarships, and Mia Quinlan of Mattapoisett, Maxx Wolski of Mattapoisett, Julianne Fournier of North Attleboro, and Ashley Perry of Taunton, who received summer study grants.

Without the attendance and donations by a truly exceptional selection of people, none of these scholarships or grants could exist. We encourage you to follow us on Facebook and visit us at www.tricountysymphonicband.org to find our concert schedule, make a donation and find our scholarship and summer study grant applications.

Monday evening, but singers are asked to arrive by 7:15 pm for their first rehearsal in order to register and receive music. Membership is $35 per semester. All voices are welcome (soprano, alto, tenor, and bass), and no auditions are required. As always, everyone who has sung with the chorus in past years will be welcomed back. This year, the chorus is especially inviting back anyone who has sung with it at any time over the last 50 years.

Under the direction of its new Music Director, Dr. Tianxu Zhou, the chorus will be rehearsing for its 50th annual Christmas Concerts, which it will present on Friday evening, December 4, at Grace Episcopal Church in New Bedford, and at Tabor Academy's Wickenden Chapel in Marion on Sunday afternoon, December 6.

These concerts will feature the chorus's most popular Christmas music over the past half century, beginning with Vivaldi's "Gloria," with orchestra accompaniment. Other music will include "O Holy Night" arranged by John Rutter, "Sleigh Ride" by Leroy Anderson, "Still, Still, Still" arranged by Norman Luboff, the hauntingly beautiful "In the Bleak Midwinter" by Christina Rossetti, and "Prayer of the Children" arranged by Andrea S. Klouse.

The chorus once again will be joined by the Southcoast Children's Chorus under the direction of Leslie Piper, which will perform several pieces. Both choruses will then perform three pieces together: the popular "Hope for Resolution" by Caldwell and Ivory, "Carol Him Sweetly" by Ruth Elaine Schram, and "Do you Hear What I Hear" by Harry Simeone.

The concert will conclude with John Rutter's wonderful benediction, "The Lord Bless You and Keep You," which concluded many of the chorus's Christmas concerts under the direction of Peter West in the 70s, 80s, and early 90s.

Now beginning its 51st season, the 90-member Sippican Choral Society is under the direction of Dr. Tianxu Zhou, with Michelle Gordon as accompanist. The group performs at least two concerts every year, singing the works of the world's great composers, as well as popular music. No auditions are necessary to sing in the chorus.

3 Generations working together in local family business!

REGAL HOUSE, a privately owned furniture store first opened its doors in 1988 at Kings Highway Plaza in New Bedford Ma. It was founded by Albino and Maria Santos, their son, the late Steven Santos and daughter Debra Santos Holden.

In 1991 due to their growing success, Regal House started to look for additional warehouse space. They found what they were looking for at 965 Church St. and the building and land were purchased to accompany the need for warehouse space. In 1993 they increased the building size at 965 Church St. to 40,000+ square feet and the showroom and warehouse came together under the same roof.

REGAL HOUSE is much more than a retail furniture store today. On site certified interior designers are available to assist customers in the showrooms or at their home, (yes still making house calls) bringing the latest in designs, fashion trends, colors, upholstery and fabrics. They also assist in paint selection, area rugs, and new this year custom window treatments.

Today, you can spot three generations, Maria, Debra and Paige (while on summer break from college), working throughout the store. They are proud of their 27 years and staff of over 23 local employees which include their own in house delivery team.

So please if you've never visited REGAL HOUSE FURNITURE, please stop by and discover for yourself how a hard working and dedicated staff have been able to sustain a local business for three generations. If you have visited in the past, please come in and see what is new and the changes we have made. Most importantly to our many loyal returning customers, We Thank You Very Much.

Paige Santos (right) of Rochester works alongside her aunt, Debra Holden (president) also from Rochester.

MOVIE REVIEW

Blood Money

By Rob Gonsalves
www.robsmovievault.com

Valerie and Her Week of Wonders (1970). Starring Jaroslava Schallerová and Helena Anýžová. Directed by Jaromil Jireš. Running time: 73 minutes.

Grown-ups want to scare kids away from having sex too soon. Fairy tales are loaded with this agenda, and so are any fable-inflected movies about a young innocent's fearful introduction to adult sexuality — David Lynch's Blue Velvet, Phillip Ridley's The Reflecting Skin, Charles Laughton's Night of the Hunter, Neil Jordan's The Company of Wolves, Marielle Heller's current Diary of a Teenage Girl. To this list we might add Jaromil Jireš' Czechoslovakian surrealist gem Valerie and Her Week of Wonders, which shares with Stephen King's Carrie and John Fawcett's Ginger Snaps a certain menstrual dread: when the girl becomes a woman, blood flows, and not just the expected blood.

Valerie, like the actress who played her at the time (Jaroslava Schallerová), is thirteen. She lives with her grandmother (Helena Anýžová) and pursues an odd relationship with a young man (Petr Kopriva) who may or may not be her brother. There is a horrid-looking vampire skulking around called the Polecat, and Grandmother seeks to sacrifice Valerie to him and become a vampire herself so as to gain eternal youth and get back together with her former lover, a repulsive priest who tries to molest Valerie. This bedtime story, with its knife-edged sexuality and nightmare logic, is decidedly not for children, though it uses what we would call adult themes to illustrate what children know instinctively anyway.

The visuals are positively swollen with metaphorical import, starting with the early image of a daisy dappled with blood. At one point, Valerie comes right out and says she's asleep and dreaming, but that just seems like a reassurance to the more insecure viewers in the audience. Why do we demand that everything in a movie, especially one as elliptical as Valerie, make literal sense? Sometimes a movie is a story; sometimes it's a song or a poem or a sketch. The story at the heart of Valerie is somewhat emotionally convoluted, premised as it is on yearning and dread. We may fear for Valerie, but she seldom fears for herself; she tells herself she's dreaming, and therefore none of this is "really happening" to her, but she also could be aware that she's in a fairy tale.

One thing Valerie knows, that all children know and grown-ups wish they didn't, is that adults can't be trusted. This is why Grandmother is all too willing to sell her granddaughter's soul, and why the priest wants Valerie's body. The movie isn't saying anything as boring as "all grandmothers and priests are bad"; it's more that grown-ups have their own angels and demons, incomprehensible to children on their side of the sexual equator. (In Lynch's Blue Velvet, adult male sexuality is likened to the chittering of chthonic insects.) To understand grown-up madness is to cross over into it forever and to lose the magic of childhood, symbolized perhaps by Valerie's enchanted earrings, which she's always in danger of losing or having stolen from her.

There's an awful lot to unpack here, and it's full of nightmarish supernatural creatures and bizarre human behavior. Sexuality here grins and feeds and infects. It drives adults crazy, makes way for the sleep of reason that literally produces monsters. Valerie is a horror film, sort of, in that it touches on carnal terrors, but for Valerie herself it's all a strange but wonderful journey — hence Valerie and Her Week of Wonders, not Her Week of Trauma. The world surrounding Valerie is populated by corrupt men and weak women, who drain each other's lifeblood figuratively. Valerie hasn't quite entered that world yet; she sees it through a scrim created by being half in childhood and half in womanhood, so therefore she sees it as we see it through the film — jumbled and chaotic yet serenely menacing and darkly erotic. We see it all through Valerie's unfrightened gaze. Like the best fairy tales, Valerie is voluptuously suggestive, a bit dangerous, and perfectly legible on its own subterranean terms.

All of this, contained in a tote, can be checked out for one week. The telescope works best on a sturdy table, such as a picnic table or steady card table. With this telescope, you should be able to see the rings of Saturn, the craters of the moon, and other celestial sights. To see the telescope, just ask!

SALOME'S STARS

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A previous misunderstanding continues to taint the atmosphere to some extent in the early part of the week. But cooler heads prevail, and the situation eases by week's end.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) While the artistic aspect of the Divine Bovine is well-served this week, that practical side is also getting the sort of recognition that could lead to a new and well-deserved opportunity.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) With home-related matters taking on more importance this week, now could be the time to make some long-deferred purchases. But shop carefully for the best quality at the best price.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Congratulations. While that family problem might still rankle, it should be easing thanks to your efforts to calm the waters. Also, a workplace situation seems to be moving in your favor.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) The Big Cat's energy levels should be rather high these days, and you might do well to tackle any tasks that still need doing. This will clear the way for those upcoming projects.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Someone's criticism might not be as negative as you perceive. Actually, it could be helpful. Discuss the matter with your critic, and you both could learn something valuable.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A business matter could cause some friction among your colleagues. But once again, that logical mind of yours comes to the rescue. And the sooner it does, the better!

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) There might still be some heated temper flare-ups out there. But your sensible self should advise you to stay out of these situations until things cool down and calm is restored.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Changing your mind could be the right thing to do if you can't resolve your doubts. You might want to discuss the matter with someone whose advice you trust.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) The Sea Goat's merrier side dominates this week, and this means that, despite your usual busy schedule, you'll be able to squeeze in parties and all sorts of fabulous fun times.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) An educational opportunity could lead to something other than what you had planned. But keep an open mind, and before you decide to turn it down, check it out.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) The Piscean wit and wisdom helps you work through a situation that might have been accidentally or even deliberately obscured. What you unravel could prove to be very revealing.

BORN THIS WEEK: Loyalty is important to you. You demand it, but you also give it generously and lovingly.

the Newfoundland coast in a treacherous, stubborn, uncomfortable, unfloatable boat which, at last count, has sunk eight times? Farley Mowat, Canadian author of Never Cry Wolf and A Whale for the Killing, has the answer in his funniest story yet. We will discuss this book on Thursday, August 20 at 6:30 pm. Copies are available at the desk.

The Café Parlez' selection for August is The Aviator's Wife by Melanie Benjamin. For much of her life, Anne Morrow has stood in the shadows of those around her, especially her millionaire father and vibrant older sister. Then she meets Colonel Charles Lindbergh, fresh off his solo flight across the Atlantic. The two marry in a headline-making wedding and are then hounded by adoring crowds and an insatiable press. In the years that follow, Anne, despite her own accomplishments as an aviator and an author, is viewed merely as the aviator's wife. We will discuss this novel about Anne Morrow Lindbergh on Thursday, August 27 at 6:30 pm. Books are available at the desk, or bring your own copy.

Call for Artists

The Sippican Lands Trust (SLT) and the Marion Art Center are partnering to sponsor an exhibition of art created by local artists to highlight the many scenic sites that comprise the Lands Trust's forests and marshes. The Lands Trust invites everyone to walk the trails, get some exercise and be inspired by the beautiful views on the many trails maintained by the Trust.

Local artists are invited to submit up to three works, in any media, for a non-juried exhibition to be held at the Marion Art Center, October 2 through November 14. All submitted works must depict scenes of or views from SLT properties. The Marion Art Center will receive a 30% commission on the sale of each piece. There will be a special "Young Artists" division within this exhibition. Young artists in elementary school, middle school and high school are invited to submit one piece for the exhibition.

Trail maps of the Lands Trust properties are available at the SLT offices, 354 Front Street, Marion (next to Uncle Jon's) or on-line at www.sippicanlandstrust.

Hall on Thursday, August 20 at 7:00 pm for a special lecture, Plato's Search for the One Thing Needful: Why Philosophy Is Important Today, with featured speaker David M. Prentiss. Sponsored by the Sippican Historical Society, the lecture will explore the relevance of ancient thinkers in the modern world. Is it possible to learn anything important from a person who lived nearly 2,500 years ago? Plato is perhaps the most influential – and misunderstood – thinker of all time. Yet at the heart of his wisdom is a very simple insight: Human beings have a deep and permanent need to understand themselves and their world, and this need must always be accounted for in how we live individually and politically. Plato and his teacher, Socrates, understood philosophy as a way of life devoted to seeking this understanding. By seeing how they understood philosophy as an activity rather than as a system of knowledge, we can gain a better understanding of ourselves and the world today.

Dave Prentiss has taught political philosophy as an adjunct professor at the University of Massachusetts Dartmouth for 15 years. He is also the President and CEO of the New Bedford Symphony Orchestra and former Board Chair of the Alma del Mar Charter School in New Bedford. He has a B.A. in philosophy from Assumption College, a Master's degree in political science from Boston College, and a J.D. from New England School of Law. His lecture will be presented free of charge, with no reservations required. The Marion Music Hall is located at

This important advancement will make registration easier and more convenient as well as cut costs relating to the printing of voter registration forms.

Massachusetts citizens can apply online by visiting Secretary Galvin's website at www.sec.state.ma.us and clicking the "Massachusetts Register to Vote Online" button to access the online application system. Bike for Clean Water Fall is the perfect time to hop on your bike and enjoy the outdoors here in southeastern Massachusetts. If you love to ride and want to make a difference for your local environment, then sign up for the ninth annual Buzzards Bay Watershed Ride on Sunday, October 4 by visiting www.savebuzzardsbay.org/ride.

The Buzzards Bay Watershed Ride is a fun community event that supports a great cause: clean water in Buzzards Bay. More than 150 cyclists participate in the Watershed Ride each year, pedaling across the beautiful Buzzards Bay region to protect clean water.

Whether you're an avid cyclist or a more casual rider, you'll enjoy the Ride's gorgeous scenery through coastal villages, farmlands, working waterfront, and colorful cranberry bogs. Choose from a 75-mile route starting in Westport or a 35-mile route starting in Rochester. Both routes end with a seaside finish line party on Quissett Harbor in Woods Hole that includes dinner, drinks, and live music.

The Buzzards Bay Watershed Ride attracts expert and casual bike riders alike. Cyclists ages 12 and over are welcome to sign up. Many riders also form teams with their friends and families. Together, they put their cycling skills to work to raise thousands of dollars for Buzzards Bay. With a lunch stop, water and snack stations along the course, and on-the-road repair technicians available at call, all riders can feel safe and supported.

Marion Art Center Celebrates 58 Years

The Marion Art Center celebrates 58 years of serving the area as a unique community center for the arts.

This year, classes and lessons in music, art, dance and theater were offered throughout the year. ArtStart, a summer program for children is running its 29th year. The theater has recently produced Dixie Swim Club, Anton Chekov's Seagull, Drinking Habits and Love, Loss and What I Wore. Rehearsals are underway for its summer comedy production A Bad Year For Tomatoes by John Patrick. MAC hosted the Halloween Parade and the Fourth of July float won fourth place in the Civic Group division! Special events included the ninth annual Arts in the Park at Bicentennial Park with over 40 artisans exhibiting beautiful handmade jewelry, paintings and ceramics. One of eight gallery shows during the year, the gallery is currently hosting an exhibition of mono-prints and oils by Copley Society master Leslie Baker and sculpture by St. George Tucker Aufranc.
